Honors and AP level classes receive extra weight in your GPA, because these classes typically tend to be more challenging and rigorous than standard-level classes.

Honors classes offer a more challenging version of a standard level course. They are usually more intensive and fast-paced. You will receive an extra 0.5 points in your weighted GPA for all honors courses. When selecting an Honors level class, consider these indicators of success: Final grade of an A or B in similar courses, EOG score of 3 or above.

AP classes, or Advanced Placement classes, are a program administered through the College Board. They are college level classes that you can take during high school, and you can receive college credit for them by taking the AP Exam at the end of the year. In AP courses, there is the expectation that students will have additional assignments/readings to complete at home outside of school hours. You will receive an extra 1.0 points in your weighted GPA for all AP courses. When selecting an AP level course, consider these indicators of success: Final grade of an A or B in similar courses, EOG score of 4 or above.

Please refer to recommendation guidelines and information provided by your middle school. As with all recommendations, they are generalizations. In choosing course selections, students and parents are encouraged to choose the most challenging course where students can still find success.
